SOUTH EAST RECOVERY LEARNING COMMUNITY

Happy Spring from the Southeast Recovery Learning Community!

Spring brings the promise of new beginnings. Fresh ideas. Renewed energy. Programs evolving to meet people where they are. Opportunities for connection that didn't exist a few months ago. As we move into this season, we honor the courage it takes to start again, to try something different, or to simply keep going.

Across the SERLC, we've seen resilience show up in so many forms. People reconnecting with their strengths. Groups finding new rhythms. Peer supporters offering steady encouragement, creativity, and compassion. These moments of growth are the heart of our work.

What's been happening at the SERLC?

This past winter season was filled with moments of connection, creativity, and resilience across our centers. From holiday gatherings and peer-led workshops to art projects, each event reflected the strength and spirit of the people who make our spaces what they are. As we look back on the season, we honor the energy, commitment, and participation that shaped these past months and continue to carry that momentum forward.

SERLC Spring Events and Activities

Join us for our Mental Health Awareness Month Gathering. This year's event on May 29th 12pm-2pm includes the First Annual Sandra Whitney-Sarles SERLC Peer Awards Ceremony, a slideshow of our community endeavors, and sharing opportunities for our community members.. Participants can join us either in person at their local Recovery Connection Center or online via Zoom, To join virtually, use Zoom Meeting ID: 834 8385 7368 and Passcode: MHAM. For questions or additional information, contact info@southeastrlc.org. All are welcome as we come together to uplift one another and celebrate the resilience of our community!

Throughout June, our community holds events and educational gatherings that shine a light on the value of diversity and inclusion. Together, these moments remind us of the power of visibility, solidarity, and shared pride.

Join us in honoring Juneteenth, a day that marks the liberation of enslaved African Americans and a defining moment in our nation's history. Our celebrations and activities create space to gather as a community, reflect on the journey toward freedom, and continue moving forward with hope, unity, and progress.

June is Pride Month, bringing a vibrant mix of celebrations, remembrances, and advocacy at the SERLC for the LGBTQIA2S+ community. We honor the identities, stories, achievements, and cultural impact of LGBTQIA2S+ individuals while reinforcing our ongoing commitment to equality, equity, diversity, and inclusion.

Upcoming Learning Opportunities

The SERLC offers learning opportunities for anyone looking to build confidence, learn new skills, or explore wellness in a supportive space. Our workshops are hands-on, trauma-informed, and rooted in lived experience.

New Workshops

Understanding the Trauma Brain

This 2-part hands-on monthly workshop with Alexandra explores how stress and trauma shape the ways we think, feel, and respond. Participants learn why the brain reacts the way it does, how protective patterns develop, and how to understand those reactions with less shame and more compassion. The workshop blends lived experience and trauma-informed practice, offering practical tools for recognizing activation, supporting steadiness, and meeting ourselves and others with understanding.

Digital Resilience and Self-care in the Age of Social Media

This workshop explores how digital life shapes mood, identity, connection, and overall wellness. Participants look at common online stressors, including comparison, conflict, misinformation, safety concerns, and scams, and learn practical ways to stay grounded and care for themselves in fast-moving digital spaces. This workshop offers tools for navigating social media with more awareness, balance, and compassion for ourselves and others. Coming Soon! Date/Time TBD

To keep up with our new workshops and trainings, follow us on Facebook @southeastrecoverylearningcommunity & Instagram at @southeastrlc or go to southeastrlc.org/events.

Upcoming Learning Opportunities

We're developing advanced trainings for peer supporters who want to deepen their practice and grow in their role. These sessions focus on real-world peer work, offering practical, trauma-informed tools for navigating complex situations, strengthening boundaries, and using lived experience with intention.

Trainings for Peer Supporters

The Peer Recovery Bridger Role: Trauma-Informed Support for Life Transitions

This training will teach peer supporters to walk with people through major life transitions with steadiness and compassion. Participants build core Bridger skills, strengthen boundaries, collaborate with care teams, and use lived experience as a source of support. They leave with practical tools and confidence to guide people through complex systems while staying grounded in trauma-informed peer support values. Coming soon! Date/Time TBD.

Building Digital Resilience: A Trauma-Informed Peer Support Approach in the Age of Social Media

This training will help peer supporters understand how digital life affects wellness, connection, identity, and recovery. It covers common online challenges and offers peer-aligned ways to support someone through them. Participants learn to talk about social media without judgment, validate digital stress, explore someone's online world with curiosity, and support healthy boundaries, privacy, and digital wellness. Coming soon! Date/Time TBD.

Meet our Peer Supporters!

ALAN KRAVITZ
(HE/HIM/HIS)
COMMUNITY CONNECTOR
QUINCY RECOVERY CONNECTION CENTER

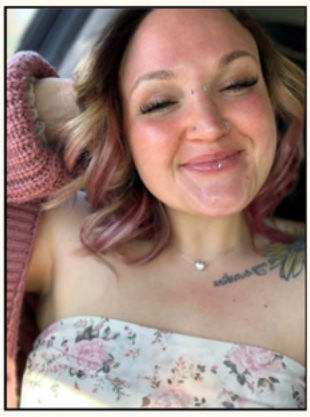

The Southeast Recovery Learning Community and Quincy Recovery Connection Center are proud to celebrate Alan Kravitz, who was recently honored by DBSA Boston's Awards and Recognition Committee as their April Volunteer Spotlight. This recognition highlights Alan's years of dedication, leadership, and presence within peer- run spaces. His story reflects the heart of peer support: showing up with honesty, connecting through lived experience, and helping create environments where people feel understood and welcomed.

Alan first entered peer support more than a decade ago, discovering a community where he felt seen in ways he had not expected. What began as a hesitant first meeting quickly became a meaningful part of his life, opening the door to friendships, purpose, and a deeper sense of belonging. Over the past eleven years, he has facilitated groups, supported countless peers, and recently became a Certified Peer Specialist and a Certified Older Adult Peer Specialist, continuing to grow in his commitment to mutuality and recovery oriented values. His humility, humor, and ability to listen deeply make him a grounding presence in every room he supports.

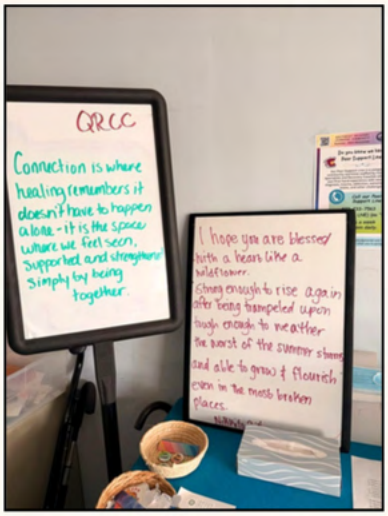

At the Quincy RCC, Alan is known for creating a welcoming and steady space where people can show up exactly as they are. His Volunteer Spotlight recognition from DBSA Boston is well deserved, and we are honored to uplift it within the SERLC community. Alan reminds us that peer support is built one connection at a time and that the impact of showing up for others can ripple far beyond a single meeting. We celebrate his recognition, his leadership, wellness journey, and the many ways he strengthens both the QRCC and the broader SERLC.

Meet our Peer Supporters!

JANINE ORTEGA
(SHE/HER/HERS)
PEER RECOVERY BRIDGER
QUINCY RECOVERY CONNECTION CENTER

Please join the QRCC in recognition of Janine as she comes upon 3 years in recovery from substances. She is a devoted parent, excellent friend and we here at the QRCC are proud to have her as a part of our team. Over the last year Janine has been working with the SERLC, Janine has been a calm, confident and resilient worker and has shown herself to be an integral part of our program. She focuses on what matters most and provides peer support with enthusiasm and grace.

Janine's recovery has shown us that recovery is possible and that small, everyday choices add up to big change. We are proud to support and stand with Janine as she reaches this meaningful anniversary.

Her creativity also shows up in the way she keeps the center's spaces, bulletin board and entryway updated. Thoughtfully arranged, welcoming, and full of life. The care she puts into these spaces reflects the diversity of the people who come through the QRCC, highlighting voices, cultures, and experiences that make our community what it is.

Recovery Story Spotlight: Justin's Story – Hyannis RCC

Growing up was not easy. I went through a lot of abuse. I was inpatient a lot and also in and out of day hospital programs. Nothing was working until later on in my adult years. I found out about the Hyannis RCC from a very kind lady named Monica. So I gave the RCC a chance and learned a lot of coping skills. Because of the RCC and all of the feels, I can definitely say my life has been transformed. Who knew recovery could be so beautiful! Thank you Hyannis RCC for saving my life.

Recovery Story Spotlight

SHANNON DONNELLY
(SHE/HER/HERS)
FALL RIVER RECOVERY CONNECTION CENTER

Shannon is the Community Connector at the Fall River Recovery Connection Center. Her journey with the RCC began as a peer in 2020 during the early days of the pandemic. At the time, Shannon struggled with intense anxiety and attended groups on Zoom without turning on her camera or saying a single word. As difficult as it was, she kept showing up day after day.

Through the care, encouragement, and connection she experienced in the peer community, Shannon gradually began to participate more and more. By the fall of 2022, she felt comfortable enough to begin attending groups in person at the Center. As her confidence and connection with the community grew, so did her desire to give back.

In the spring of 2024, Shannon began volunteering as the co-facilitator of the Grief Healing Group, helping to create a space where peers could share their experiences and support one another through loss. In the summer of 2025, she officially joined the staff at the RCC as the Community Connector.

Shannon recently created two groups at the Center that are especially meaningful to her: Grounding & Reflection and Self-Care. These groups invite peers to slow down, take a moment to check in with themselves, and connect with others through shared conversation and reflection. They offer space to think about what caring for yourself can look like in everyday life and how small changes can help make personal well-being more of a priority. She is also partnering with Rainbow Rabbit Wandering Wardrobe to offer various workshops, creating a welcoming and creative space for members of the LGBTQ+ community.

Shannon graduated summa cum laude from Stonehill College in 1998 with a Bachelor of Arts in Mathematics and a minor in Secondary Education. She spent many years working as an analyst at Filene's Corporate in Boston. Shannon loves singing, spending time with her family, and recently married the love of her life.

Such Great Friends

The snow looks like white crystal, the streets look sparkling clean;
but I see the opposite of what it really means, and what it does to you,
it makes you want to hold your head down,
as you begin to feel so ashamed, that you don't want to be around;
around like a circle, that only continues to spin, twirling faster, and faster, as though it was lost in the wind;

but as I told you before, this is not a pity party,
so just hold on a minute because l am just getting started,
starting to hold my head up and know that this is not the end,
like the departure in that relationship, with your very conniving friend, an ending that you couldn't describe in any of your wildest dreams, but as I told you before, this is not actually what it seems;
so just go ahead and keep letting your head stay in a confused twirl,
and you'll begin to feel so empty, just like an oyster without a pearl, well it seems like that I am beginning to run out of space, but l will finish this poem, because, this is not a race, but this is not about my poems, or the way I write my lyrics, but I just wanted to take the time to share it,

because I felt it down in my spirit,
so thanks for listening, time, and time again,
and I'm so glad to be here,
and to be back with all of my friends!!

Embracing Authenticity and Realness

Iyanna Rivera
Brockton RCC
Outreach Coordinator

Many people hide behind secrets, striving to be like someone else. The irony is that it's easier to be yourself, yet many feel compelled to imitate others. People often try to escape their past, but it inevitably catches up with them.

To fit in, many put up facades, masking their true selves out of fear—fear of judgment, ridicule, and rejection. They suppress the qualities that make them unique, trading authenticity for social approval, status, and power gained through intimidation.

Wearing this mask may feel like protection, but it also conceals their real identity. Everyone experiences judgment, especially when their actions don't align with their words. But those with "real eyes" can see through the lies. I believe in transparency, and where others fear showing their true selves, I embrace mine with authenticity. It is my strength, and I wield it freely. Hiding behind a mask would suffocate me.

Not everyone will accept you, and that's okay. People gossip about others' successes and failures because they can't face their own truth. But if you are honest about who you are, no one holds the power to judge you. You know your worth.

You were born to be real, not perfect.
You are here to be yourself, not to live for someone else.
– Ria Johnson

Unfinished Business

Iyanna Rivera
Brockton RCC
Outreach Coordinator

As a multiple suicide attempt survivor there were always professionals elusively commenting on my attempts by saying, “Never do that again!”, “It’ll make things worse”, and “Life gets better!” These comments just lead me to intense curiosity. How does it make it worse? When will life get better? None of these people could explain their statements further than the comment itself. Without any convincing explanations, I continued to self-harm. There were also peers who laughed about my suicide attempts and bullied me for it. In my future, I learned through experience what these professionals could not explain in depth pertaining to the topic of suicide and prevention. If I could go back in time and converse with my younger self, I would provide detailed information, adequate resources, and unconditional support. It would sound similar to this.

There is some unfinished business.

Have you heard: “It gets better,” “It’s all in your head.”
Have you heard: “Never do that again,” “You’re doing this for attention,” or “The world is a different place without you.”

Have you seen what survivors carry —blindness, paralysis, bodies changed.
Have you wondered what life becomes after surviving the unthinkable — brain injury, nerve damage, a body stitched back together by chance.

If life gives you a second, third, fourth, fifth chance…
How much will you grow, laugh, succeed, witness.
How deeply you’ll learn the importance of you in this world.

Was it the bullies? I’ve been there. The media’s weight?
I’ve been there.
The neglect, the abandonment, the breaking heart?
I’ve been there.
The pressure, the fears— rational or not — spilling into tears?
Oh, I’ve been there.

And still — I am here to tell you to live. Live for life’s sake.
Because we have unfinished business.

We have jokes to tell, people to lift up, laughter waiting for us. We still have to meet the person who will help heal the broken places. We have dreams — real ones — still waiting to arrive.

There is unfinished business. New memories to make, new stories to tell, cups of tea to sip, gossip to share, tears to cry alone and together, words still waiting to be spoken.

New adventures, unmentionable trips, secrets to tell and secrets to keep. Unfinished smiles, unfinished success, unfinished thank-you’s, unanswered yes’s.

So… have you heard?
There is some unfinished business.
